

FOR PRESIDENT,
BENJAMIN HARRISON
OF INDIANA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
LEVI P. MORTON
OF NEW YORK.

ARTESIAN WELLS

The Marysville Appeal has the following:

The people of Biggs, Sutter City, Wheatland and Sheridan are discussing projects for the boring of artesian wells. At Sheridan a committee has been appointed to gather information about such wells, and has already reached the conclusion that artesian water increases the value of land to a very great extent. Belief in the value of irrigation is steadily growing in this section.

The Wheatland Four Corners expresses the opinion that the sinking of one experimental artesian well "would add ten dollars per acre in value to every acre within a radius of ten miles." Our cotemporary proceeds to make these pertinent remarks:

Up in Butte county lands are selling from eighty to one hundred and fifty dollars per acre that, to all outward appearances, cannot compare with our poorest grade of redlands. The reason is because a few enterprising capitalists have founded systems of irrigation and have by actual tests shown what can be raised on such irrigated lands. Whitney & Co., who bought the Lone Tree tract from J. M. C. Jasper, are proposing to put it on the market as citrus fruit land. Their first step will be to bring water upon the land. We venture to say that inside of one year the land they bought for sixteen dollars per acre will be sold for from fifty to one hundred dollars per acre. Our Wheatland farmers would scorn to own such land. The redlands are infinitely better, yet they will not bring so much in cold cash. And it is simply because their resources are undeveloped. After it is once known that artesian water can be got in this section four such wells can be sunk to a depth of 500 to 1000 feet for about $1,000 each or less, according to the amount of casing necessary. One such well on every red land ranch of 320 acres would add $5,000 to its salable value.

There can be no disputing the position of the Four Corners on this matter of artesian wells. Whenever such wells are successfully sunk they will quickly demonstrate their value. But attention should be paid to the importance of securing some more general system of irrigation, by means of canals.

THE PRIMARIES.

Yesterday's primary was as fair a contest between rival candidates as ever held in this county. The agreement made regarding split tickets was kept to the letter. Here and there stories were peddled from one candidate to another regarding this or that man's action, which, when properly traced, proved to have been the work of over officious friends and not the candidates. The result has been an exceptionally strong ticket, which will poll the full party vote in November. The Republican party in this county was never more solidly united than now.
